Excerpt from The Story of a Hundred Years: Or the Territorial Growth of the United States of America Since the Organization of the Northwest Territory, July 13th, 1787 Wednesday, July 13, 1887, is just one hundred years since the Congress of the United States of America organized its first territory and named it The Territory Northwest of the Ohio River. How little they who organized this Territory, thought that in one hundred years to a day, near midway of that vast unbroken wilderness, there would be a city of seven hundred and fifty thousand people, and that in it there would be in session, a convention of Teachers numbering several thousands, gathered from a common country whose extent was from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Great Lakes. This little Book (telling briefly the story of the marvelous growth of our country during this one hundred years, together with its causes) is respectfully commended to the educators of our nation, whether in the home or school, or pulpit, or editorial chair.
